PEACE PROSPECT BOOSTS STOCKS

Report of President's Willingness to Back Changes Cause.

By BROADWAY WALL.

New York, Dec. 13.—Because of reports that the peace treaty as amended by the Senate would be accepted by the allies and that President Wilson had agreed to let it go through in its modified form, there was heavy buying of stocks all of today in Wall Street. Net gains were large in the speculative issues and the whereabouts of the shorts was thus clearly disclosed. There were no shorts in the rails evidently for those issues continued heavy. One notable exception was Pere Marquette. Even the coppers were covered by professionals. Anaconda having an extreme advance of more than 3 points. The oil stocks were all strong, as were the motors and U. S. Rubber.

Buying of rubber was based largely on expectation of a decision from the Supreme Court on the question of stock dividends.

Mexican Petroleum had a swift rebound when the street discovered that reports in newspapers of the confiscation of oil and interference with shipments had been exaggerated. The actual bank statement today showed surplus decreased.

Big Stock Added to Oil Company

Holland Says Thompson Puts $100,000,000 Into Sinclair Concern.

The reasons are excellent, almost authoritative, for reporting that under the leadership and inspiration of Col. William B. Thompson, there has been recently added to the finances of the oil corporation of which Harry F. Sinclair is president, $100,000,000. Vast as are Col. Thompson's other interests, with none of them excepting his former relation to a great copper company, has his association been officially identified. Many now look upon him as one of the masterful group of great financiers which is now taking the place of those others who, in the generation which has just ended, were the leaders in American finance, industry and commerce.

AZTECS WERE CROSS-BREED OF INDIANS AND ETRUSCANS

DECLARES PROFESSOR PORTA

By PROF. ALBERT F. PORTA. (Noted Scientist, Savant and Archaeologist.)

San Francisco, Oct. 13.—Some six miles inland from the Gulf of Campeche on the northwest coast of Yucatan where Antilia, the Etruscan admiral, is believed to have landed about 478 years before the birth of Christ, stands the crumbling, jungle-grown ruins of a once-great city. The ancient name of this ruined city—the first recorded visit to which was made by the Spanish bishop Don Landu, who traveled in the train of Hernando Cortez—was Uxmál.

Half-a-century ago, archaeologists of note have pondered the mystery of Uxmál, just as they have those of other ruined communities in the former Kingdom of Quiche—those of Tikal, Chichen Itza and Xupa in particular. But one by one they have given up, saying:

These Mexican "Indians" of the present day show plainly their descent from the early Italian race known as the Etruscans, according to Prof. Albert F. Porta. The man is short, heavy-set, and has the same features as the Etruscans of antiquity.

"On this point history is silent." It would seem that none of these scholars and long of their suggestion with all courtesy, and with great deference to their erudition—has given sufficient time to a consideration of ancient Etruria.

Otherwise they would have learned, and quickly applied to their reflections on pre-historic America—that "Uxmál" was the name of a prominent Etruscan city which was flourishing in Europe in the fifth century before Christ.

The theory that the Aztecs, that marvelous race of people who flourished in Mexico at the time of the Conquest, were a cross-breed between an aboriginal Indian and an Aryan race has been upheld—or at least unopposed—by the majority of historians and students of early American life.

Bancroft, perhaps the most eminent of American historians, asserts that voyages between Europe and America were "not uncommon" during the early days of the Christian era—and this is supported by positive proofs which will be discussed in my concluding article.

Proofs of a much earlier influx of Europeans of the Etruscans and Carthaginians heretofore mentioned exist in great plenty throughout Mexico and Central America today. Consider the present-day Indian types whose photographs are reproduced herewith. The man is of typical Latin build—vastly different from the North American Indian, who was tall, slender and long of arm and leg. The features, moreover—as in the case of the woman—are decidedly Aryan, as against the almost Mongolian cast of the more northerly tribes.

More recently, at the costume of the woman. The designs are typically Etruscan—the embroidery, the stripes in the skirt, even the coiffure. In her hands is a water-jar of pure Etruscan model.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

By JOSEPH F. PRITCHARD.

Chicago, Dec. 12.—The Chicago Board of Trade will return to normal business hours Monday as a result of improvement in the coal situation. Business was restricted because of the coal ban. Corn prices declined 1/4 to 1/2¢ today. Cash corn at Chicago was unchanged to 1 cent lower. Corn manufacturing plants will reopen with normal fuel supplies and it was expected they would be heavy purchasers of corn next week.

While the government's December report on corn was construed as bullish, the fact that the crop this year is one of the best ever grown and will total nearly 3,000,000,000 bushels, continued to attract attention.

Oats showed a gain of 1/4 to 1/2¢ with Eastern trade on the buying side. Cash prices were unchanged. Corn meal was 1 cent higher. Business in the provision pit was mainly between packers with some stop loss orders executed on the decline and with the volume in hand commodities was good on domestic account.
